Teaching & Learning Fair Presentation                                  1:50 PM
Abstract 2017-219                                                      Room: Sopris

Online learning is connected learning, not disconnected learning. Active learning in an online environment is possible. Creative projects can take students from the keyboard to the board room with the proper planning by professors. This presentation will display various projects that offer the opportunity to actively engage an online learner.
