Facilitating active learning and student engagement can be a challenge in sport finance courses. To encourage critical thinking, students assume different roles (e.g., team officials, residents) pertaining to a real-life scenario involving a publicly subsidized stadium. Students apply knowledge in answering and asking questions about how stadiums impact communities.